

AMP Dynamic Balanced

Quarterly Investment Option Update

31 December 2020

Aim and Strategy

The investment objective of the portfolio is to outperform the median of the Chant West growth fund survey over the investment horizon of the fund (7 years). The portfolio aims to provide the investor with a cost-effective investment across the main asset classes with higher exposure to growth assets. Exposure to these will be attained predominantly through the use of index-focussed investment managers. A portion of the portfolio (30%) also runs a dynamic asset allocation investment approach which aims to achieve growth by adopting a flexible approach to asset allocation. This portion of the portfolio will have exposure to assets such as shares, listed property, commodities, fixed income, credit and cash through derivatives, exchange traded funds or index funds.

Fund Performance

The Fund rose strongly in the December quarter. Major developments over the period included the election of Joe Biden to the US presidency, the continuation of massive global stimulus programmes and the discovery of safe and effective COVID-19 vaccines. All these events contributed to pushing markets higher over the period. The fourth quarter of 2020 ended up being one of the strongest quarters in recent memory for a diversified investor, with all major asset classes delivering a positive return and growth assets delivering exceptionally high returns. The S&P/ASX 200 index ended the quarter up 13.8%, whilst the MSCI World ex Australia index closed 18.9% higher. Government bonds were generally unchanged, ending the period slightly higher as yields drifted lower.

In this volatile environment, absolute performance was strongly positive and the Fund outperformed, with our underlying Dynamic Markets Fund and Multi-asset Fund both being positioned to benefit for the market recovery. The Dynamic Markets Fund achieved this positioning through a long cyclical bias.

The Dynamic Markets Fund meanwhile had an outstanding fourth quarter, after underperforming in the September quarter, as positive news on a vaccine saw a heavy rotation out of technology stocks and into value stocks such as financials and industrials.

Looking ahead, 2021 is poised to be a volatile period for investors, albeit with positive tailwinds. We believe the year is shaping up to be a good one for investors, with the continuing global recovery from the COVID-19 recession likely to be the dominant theme. As such, we remain confident an active, diversified approach across defensive and growth assets will benefit members going forward.

Market Review

December saw some closure and improved visibility on issues that had been weighing on the market for most of 2020. Despite further COVID-19 waves, breakouts and new strains, tangible plans for vaccine rollouts in 2021 showed an improved path to normalcy. In Europe, a Brexit deal was finally agreed and signed. All-in-all, the global environment imparted a more positive backdrop at the tail-end of the year which kept equity markets supported. However, many equity markets now look stretched and signs of excessive optimism have been reflected in IPOs often trading significantly above their launch valuations, with sketchy or sometimes zero profitability.

Ahead of the US presidential election global equities exhibited mixed performance as the initial acrimonious presidential debate impacted market certainty and support. After a protracted count, Democratic candidate Joe Biden won the election, although it took significant time for the Trump administration to tacitly accept defeat and agree to co-operate with a transition of power. Post the US election, global equity markets were buoyed by increased political certainty and positive news on several viable COVID-19 vaccines.

Global markets will be looking ahead to 2021 hoping that the impact of 2020 will be able to be reversed as soon as possible once vaccine programmes start to make their full effect felt.
